

New Energy. New Jobs.
New Opportunities for Appalachia.
October 26–28, 2009 • Athens, Ohio

An Appalachian Regional Commission Conference
Hosted by the State of Ohio

The demand for clean energy and efficient energy use is creating a new energy sector--and generating new opportunities for business growth and job creation. How can Appalachian communities grow green jobs in today's evolving energy economy?

ARC's October 2009 New Energy. New Jobs. New Opportunities for Appalachia conference will share ideas and best practices on how communities can use their energy resources and emerging energy technologies and practices to diversify and strengthen their economies. Some of the panel session topics will include

- Developing energy-efficient infrastructure;
- Growing green enterprises and communities;
- Building new-energy education and training programs; and
- Finding federal funding for energy programs.

Events will include site tours at local energy-related programs and enterprises.

See the conference Web site for the complete agenda.

Join your colleagues in Athens October 26-28 to explore how your community can benefit from the economic opportunities of the clean-energy sector. Register now--space is limited!

REGISTER NOW